CAIRO, June 10 (NYT).-Egypt and the United States are in agreement on seeking a delay in the next round of the Geneva peace conference on the Middle East at least until the end of September or early October, according to high-placed sources.

A Topic for Nixon

The date and the terms of reference of the Geneva conference will be one of the principal subjects that Arab and Israeli leaders will raise with President Nixon, whose Middle East tour begins in Cairo on Wednesday.

The Americans and Egyptians are convinced that several months of intensive behind-thescenes consultation are needed to prepare the ground for the Geneva conference and save it from

It was Mr. Nixon's fourth visit to this city and his second as President. Violent demonstrations marked his stopover here in 1972 en route to Russia. More than 1,200 armed policemen ringed Salzburg airport tonight to block any repetition.

But no demonstration materialized. The closest thing was a gathering of 40 young Trotskyites in a Salzburg hall to pledge "sol-idarity with the Palestinian The police kept everyone without an official pass away from the airport. About 150 middleaged persons gathered under umbrellas outside—some to praise curiosity. The temperature was about 50 degrees Fahrenheit and a cold drizzle fell as Mr. Nixon's plane rolled to a halt before Austrian Chancellor Bruno Kreisky.

"Every nation in the world has stake in maintaining peace in the Middle East," Mr. Nixon said in a brief airport statement.

"I trust that this journey will contirbute not only to peace in that area but to peace for all nations of the world," he said. Mr. Kreisky recalled that Mr. Nixon's Moscow visit in 1972 "promoted so successfully a lessening of tensions throughout the world" and said, "we hope you will be a Press Secretary Ronald Ziegier said that in a meeting tomorrow morning, the two leaders will have a chance to discuss "East-West relations." Mr. Kreisky recently visited Moscow.

News Analysis

Seoul Is Confused and Tense Under Strict Curbs by Park

By Richard Halloran

SEOUL, June 10 (NYT).—An American helicopter has been shot down over Seoul by nervous South Korean gunners in an action that is taken here as underscoring the jumpy and confused mood of the city.

U.S. officials said the helicopter, on a routine orientation flight. flew into the vicinity of the restricted airspace over the Blue House. President Chung Hee Park's executive mansion. Why the Koreans fired on a U.S. helicopter when it was at about 1.000 feet and its markings were clearly visible was not known, except that the gunners have standing orders to shoot at anything

U.S. officials said privately that exactly what happened might never be known since they had gotten conflicting versions from Koreans and Americans. There was a similar experience not long ago, when the Koreans fired at aircraft said at first to be American and later to be unidentified. The episodes indicate two things.

The people are tense, evidently because Mr. Park has clamped down so hard on every aspect He has stopped most political activity, regulated the economy, imposed severe security precautions and specified the limits on funeral costs and the length of men's hair and women's skirts.

And secondly, no one really knows what is going on. The government operates in tight secrecy and gives little information to the people through a strictly censored press. There is plenty of gossip, but it is virtually impossible to sift fact from rumor. Government spokesmen are often contradictory.

At the center of all this is the austere and aloof President, a former general who has steadily gathered power and crushed opposition by clapping into jail those who call for a measure of freedom. The President and his backers maintain that stringent discipline is needed to overcome challenges from North Korea and to make economic progress.

The most severe of the President's actions came on April 3, when he decreed that dissent could be punished with death. Under powers given him when he had the constitution revised in 1972 he ruled that dissenters could be arrested without warrant and tried by secret court-martial. The first trials under that decree are expected shortly, 52 Koreans and two Japanese having been indicted, among them scholars, farmers, businessmen, laborers and persons active in religious affairs. About 200 are expected to be tried later.

The decree, known as Emergency Measure No. 4, was aimed at the National Democratio League of Students and Youth, but it went on to condemn any dissent, although dissent was vaguely defined.

The decree, which prohibits any association with the youth league, goes on to say that "it shall be prohibited for any person to advocate, instigate or propagate any act or acts" that are forbidden to the league or to conduct "individual or collective activities such as assembly, demonstration, protest or sitdown in or around academic institutions."

A provision says: "It shall be prohibited for any person to instigute, propagate, broadcast. report. otherwise communicate to others such act or acts as are prohibited by the present emergency measures."

Violators "and any person who defames the present emergency measures shall be punished by death, life imprisonment or imprisonment for not less than

The decree was followed by sweeping arrests and interroga-

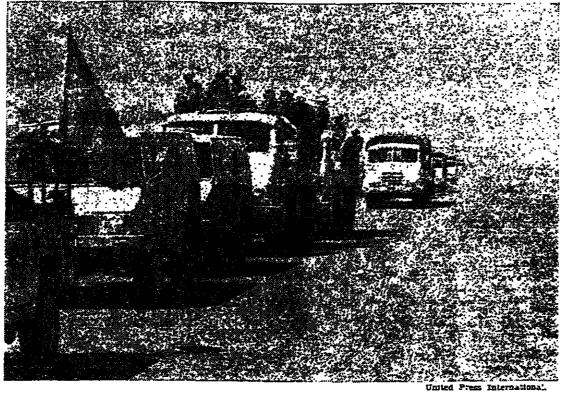

Despite all this, there has been little change in the appearance of daily life. However, the shops are less crowded because prices are soaring. This year, wholesale prices have gone up 29.8 percent and consumer prices 16.7 percent Rice, the staple of the diet, is up about 60 percent, costing almost half the average family income. Political differences are more noticeable. Mr. Park and his senior advisers have become even more shrill in their warnings of Communist threat, although U.S. officers say there is no change in the balance of militar? power. Hardly a day passes without an official prediction of attack or subversion. To reinforce a spirit of vigilance, sirraid drills are conducted regularly complete with broadcast recordings of planes in action. There also are anomalies such as officials warning of the danger from the Communist North, but telling potential U.S. investors that South Kores is safe.

The real impact of Mr. Park's crackdown on his adversaries is more felt than seen. There is ample evidence that his government has stunned the nation with its restrictions, especially the recent threat of the death penalty.

The opposition parties have been reduced to making mild demands-which are ignored-to keep up the facade of parliamentary politics, Mr. Park has warned opposition politicians to refrain from indiscreet remarks.

Sen. Dole Walks Watergate 'Tightrope'

By R.W. Apple Jr. WASHINGTON, June 19 (NVI)

- There is a statistic that nearly drives Son, Robert Dole to aistraction. The statistic emerged from a recent statewide poil taken by television station KAKE in Wichita, Kan., Sen. Dole's home state. It showed that 50 percent of the electorate numbed President Ninon to continue in office, 45 percent wanted him to quit or be ousted and 2 percent had no opinion,

"How the hell do you deal with that if you're a Republican up for re-election?" Sen. Dole asked, "It's an impossible allemma. One guy gives me hell for betraying Nixon. The next guy comes up to me and says. I'm for you, Bob. but you've got to get Nixon off your back. No way to stay on that tightropy.

Sen. Dole is an example of the Republican senators trying to win re-election and encountering the problem of Watergate-except that he is more candid than most in conceding his problems, in part perhaps because his problems are more severe.

'Overriding Issue'

"The people are worried about initiation, sure," the 50-year-old Kunsan said recently in an interview in his office, "but Watergate will be the overriding issue in November, unless the President is out of office, and any politician who tells you otherwise is just living on pipedreams, that's all."

Peaceful Journey

with Saudi Arabia, the President of the United States left for a tour of the Middle East vesterday. Even with full recognition of the domestic political pressures which undoubtedly made President Nixon so eager to seize this moment, a presidential visit to Israel and four Arab countries holds genuine and dramatic importance across the sweep of American foreign policy.

Like Mr. Nixon's earlier visit to the People's Republic of China, the fact that the trip is taking place at all far overshadows any particular results that could ensue. Not since 1943 has an American president found it suitable-or possible-to make a personal appearance in the Middle East.

Anyone who has stood in an Arab crowd during the past decade or so, hearing harangues against "American imperialism" from Arab nationalists, can appreciate the impact now of those same crowds cheering the American head of state and promises of Arab-American friendship. The new U.S. ambassador to Egypt—the first after nearly seven years of diplomatic estrangementspoke recently of a "Copernican change" in Egyptian-American relations.

Contrary to the instincts of many who have been nervous observers of the Arab-Israeli confrontation all these years, this change does not appear to have come about from any weakening of U.S. support for the survival and security of Israel. In her last statement in office, Premier Golda Meir deciared confidently that "the consistent aid of the United States to Israel has been assured for the future." Thanks to the nego-

Bolstered by a sweeping new agreement tiating skill of Secretary of State Klasinger, the Nixon administration seems to have defied the old diplomatic imperative that no power could receive the friendship of both Israel and the Arabs at the same time.

How long this era of tentative good feeling can be maintained is, of course, open to question. Much will depend on the degree of restraint shown by President Nixon this week in not allowing Egyptian and other Arab expectations to become overinflated.

Economic and technological cooperation between the United States and Arab states can be an influence for peaceful development across the Middle East; any suggestion that this country could become a major new source of armaments for the Arabs on Israel's borders would work counter to the peace prospects that have now been painstakingly pried open.

By the same token, as a purely pragmatic proposition, any attempt to make President Nixon's visit or the American peacemaking efforts seem anti-Soviet in motivation would only trigger reprisals and setbacks. It would also sour the atmosphere for Mr. Nixon's subsequent and more substantive meetings in the Kremiin late this month.

President Nixon's course across the Middle East has no meaningful relevance to the political crisis in which he and his administration are now sinking, however much it may be manipulated for all-too-familiar image-building purposes. It marks, rather, a new diplomatic opening to a part of the world where the United States was not welcomed before. With caution, but full appreclation of its potential for reducing international tensions, this is a trip worth taking. THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Defeating Troop Cuts

The decisive defeat of the Mansfield amendment requiring withdrawal of 125,000 American troops from overseas is a victory for common sense. The Senate vote, 30 years to the day after the American landing in Normandy that began the liberation of Nazioccupied Europe, was a vote for responsible American policy in the world, a vote against unilateral disengagement.

The American troops in Europe provide the crucial underpinning for that continent's military and political stability. They constitute the chief link between West Europe's essentially non-nuclear defenses and the American nuclear deterrent. Without them. the Soviet Union's military preponderance. deployed only a few miles away, would quickly become political preponderance. Without moving a single soldier, Moscow's influence over events in a defenseless West Europe would multiply overnight.

The world's most potent industrial complex outside the United States, that is. West Europe, and the geographic area overseas most vital to American security would become almost as vulnerable to Soviet pressure as the government of Finland. Nuclear buildup by the West Europeans would be the only alternative to loss of independence.

The military balance that American forces assure in Central Europe is a precious asset that has kept the peace for three decades. It does not require that every one of the 300,000 American troops remain there forever. American force levels are already more than a third below those of the peak periods of the 1950s and 60s. The mutual force reduction talks in Vienna offer a possibility of further Soviet-American cutbacks that would maintain the balance.

The head of steam in the Congress behind the Mansfield amendment has stemmed primarily from balance-of-payments difficulties, which no longer exist, plus a neoisolationist trend, stimulated by a Vietnam Involvement that has ended. The time has come to end the perennial debate over the Mansfield amendment. Not disengagement, but increased engagement of the United States in stabilizing Europe and the Atlantic community is the real challenge for the

The Soviet decision to grant exit visas to free societies will remain, however, as long as the same fundamental freedom to emigrate continues to be denied to other, lesser known Soviet citizens. Even as the freeing of the Panovs was announced, another would-be emigre, physicist Alexander Voronel, was roughly arrested by Russian police. Ultimately the Kremlin must recognize that whenever is denies basic human rights to any of its people it diminishes itself in the eyes of free men everywhere and makes the road to détente more difficula.

Soviet Oppression

Could even Kaika do justice to the ingenious tactics of bureaucratic terror employed by the Soviet Union against Jewish and other dissenters? Eighteen Jewish scientists, dismissed from their jobs for applying quite legally for exit visas to Israel, have organized a scientific seminar and invited scientific colleagues from the West. Embarrassed by the widespread sympathy among Western scientists for this defiance, the Soviet authorities have put astonishing pressure on the organizers to cancel the seminar. First, they were conscripted into the army, then threatened with exile to a remote part of the Soviet Union if the seminar went ahead. Nor is this an isolated example of administrative tyranny against a background of "Leninist legality." Like the three-year oppression of the Panovs. now mercifully free to depart, it is the automatic result of even slight deviations from the Soviet norm.

There is only one hope of salvation, only one countervailing power to the bureaucracy-namely, the attention of capricious. easily bored world opinion. Should then, the West Insist, as part of detente or as the price-tag on any economic transaction, on greater freedom within-or, indeed, outside -Russia? Surely it is right to do so-even though realism will dictate that sometimes only small concessions will be obtained from the Kremlin. . . .

The decision of the Seriet Union to allow Valery and Galina Panov to leave for Israel gives the visit of the Bolshor Ballet to London a better start than seemed possible last week." It would not be right nowever, to hold members of the Borshor Ballet responsible for the wrongs done to the Panovs and many others in the Soviet Union. The right target is the government that sent them and the worst som of gesture would be to try to disrupt performances.

By Anthony Lewis

NEW YORK.—Three years ago this week The New York Times began printing the record of official arrogance, deception and blundering that came to be called the Pentagon papers. The Nixon administration went to court to try to stop it. Two weeks later, after much frantic legal activity, the Supreme Court ruled out an injunction.

It was a famous victory for freedom of the press. Or was it? Have we-tine courts, Congress, the press, the public-really learned the lesson of that case?

Looking back, one thing we can see clearly is the emptiness of gravely harm the national security. Those arguments were on the same level of hysteria as the more recent one that the presidency would end if Richard Nixon had to comply with a subpoens. Three years later on, it is certainly hard to think of any security damage from publication of the Pentagon papers.

Holders of Power

It was not the security of the country that was at stake, we know now; it was the security of the holders of power. President Nixon and Henry Kissinger felt themselves threatened. They responded with wiretaps, prosecutions, vengeance: paranoia ram-

In the years since the Pentagon papers broke upon our consciousness we should also have learned a good deal about the dangers of secrecy. It is not only Watergate. We have discovered among many other things that the United States secretly bombed a neutral country, Cambodia, and secretly used artificial rainmaking as a technique of war. Such surreptitions practices required lying and deception to be woven into the pattern of official life.

Have we learned anything from this depressing record? Certainly there is no sign that the executive branch has, not under this President.

New Threats

Right after the Pentagon papers case, the government proceeded with an outrageous attempt to impose on his country the equivalent of Britain's confining Offi-cial Secrets Act, prohibiting the disclosure of any government information without official approval. That was the intent of the failed prosecution of Daniel Elisberg for leaking the papers.

LONDON.—Come: Let us see Li how well you know the Brit-ish. The poet laureate has been accused by an earl of telling "downright lies" and by a mayor of being "thoroughly un-Christlan." The poet laureate, in turn, declares that some supposedly objective evidence relied upon by the earl and the mayor is "unsympathetically biased," and adds for good measure that he "sus-pects the temptations of the fleshpots." And the question, of course, is: What is all this about?

Those who deduce high-level political maneuvering, call girl scandals, a deadly struggle between the CIA and the KGB, or the imminent collapse of the British economy, have, I fear, failed ignominiously. The row is, of course, about a proposal to pull down a late-Victorian church in Chelsea. The laureate, Sir John Betjeman, has for long been the leader of those who campaign to save from destruction the architectural heritage of the 19th century in Britain. The church in question—Holy Trinity, Sloane Street—is a gigantic monument to the pre-Raphselite influence to-wards the end of the last century. stained glass and all. The local authorities, church and lay, say that the building is hopelessly uneconomic to keep up, and that it ought to be demolished and replaced by a modern complex of shops and offices with a small new church incorporated. Battle

Speculation

Allegations were first made a few months ago, in our satirical fortnightly magazine. "Private Eye," that the old and tried property speculators' trick was being played with the church in queson. The trick is to allow an architecturally important but un-economic building on a valuable site to decay beyond reasonable hope of repair, and then claim that the only thing to do is to pull it down and develop the area, thus making profits for the speculators. The claim was denied in an impressive, dignified and gentle rejoinder by the rector of the church, who invited the critics of the church's demolition to spend some time helping, say, to keep the gutters cleared so that further deterioration might be kept at bay. And the earl (of Cadogan) and the mayor (of Chelsea) insist that the huge building is not only rulnously expensive to keep up, but vastly in excess of anything the tiny, dwindling congregation can possibly need. To which Sir John Betjeman - has retorted in - a pamphiet, that the church "is a that society will be destricted great soaring prayer," and that without being replaced by the to pull it down and replace it thing unless we find some m with a commercial building with some little 'holy room' as a sop to God is unthinkable." He also insists that congregations could be increased and funds raised to keep the church in being. Incidentally. Betjeman is not merely, in this matter, speaking as an architectural conservationist: He is also a devout Christian. So, incidentally, is the earl, who has been a churchwarden at Holy Trinity for many years. Deadlock and angry words:

WASHINGTON — Contradicting Nixon administration claims that détente is relaxing repression in the Soviet Union the American ambassador in Moscow has privately cabled Washington that the KGB secret police has intensified harassment of Soviet citizens trying to contact the U.S. Embassy.

In a May 22 "confidential" telegram to the State Department Ambassador Walter Stoessel revealed the new "pattern of intensifying monitoring and harassment of Soviet citizens" attempting to enter the embassy. "Judging from several recent incidents. Soviet security has recently become less tolerant of such con-

A manuscript attributed to Natalya Reshetevskaya, who was separated from the novelist in 1970, is circulating at a time when stores in the United States are offering the first copies of an American edition of "The Gulag Archipelago," Mr. Solzhenitsyn's widely publicized account of the Soviet labor-camp system from 1918 to 1956. The book is being published in the United States by Harper & Row.

Miss Reshetovskaya, who was still living with Mr. Solzhenitsvn when he wrote the book and typed at least part of it, was quoted carlier this year as having described it as "camp folklore" rather than as a genuine rellection of history.

MOSCOW June 10 (WP) \sim Patner Dmitri Dudko, the Orthodox priest who caused a small sensation here with his outspoken nubble statements on sensitive issues has applicated to church leagers for his public defiance of their instructions

Last month church authorities ordered Father Dmitri to move from his Moscow church to a rural parists. In a defiant public statement, the priest refused and said he would retire from active service in the church instead. He made that announcement in his church on May 18, and was led away afterward by two ruent whom Westerners present thought. were plain lothes police.

Sources close to Pather Dmitri have since som that these men were triengs, not policemen, who only sought to help the priest get away from the church without incident. Father Dmitri was reportedly upset by incorrect foreign press reports that he had been detained or arrested.

Mystery Deepens

The fact that he was not arrested and his apology now to church authorities deepen the mystery surrounding Father Dmitri's nine "meetings" with his flock this rinter and spring, at which he spoke out bluntly against contemporary conditions in the Soviet Union, especially spiritual and moral conditions. If they had followed their normal standards, the political police would have arrested Father Dmitri months ago.

Some intellectuals here spectilate that Father Dmitri has friends or supporters in high places who have protected him. Many intellectuals believe that

"Mitya" Dudko went from the Soviet Army to a church seminary at the end of World War II. He finished the semmary in two years and entered the Theological Academy at Zagorsk, the religious shrine 50 miles northeast of

After a year, seminarist Dudko was arrested by the security police for a religious poem he had written. He ended up in a Siberian labor camp, where he served until Stalin's death, according to Mr. Krasnov's essay, and "the camp became his university -he read much and devoted much of his time to praying" and left the camp spiritually mature."

Returning to Moscow in 1956 he managed to re-enter the Theological Academy, despite the opposition of some of its officials. He completed his studies in 1958, but was not ordained as a priest until late 1960, at the age of 38. He was assigned to a Moscow church where according to Mr. Krasnov, he became popular for his preaching his sincerity and his way with people both simple folk and intellectuals.

At Air France we believe that a 1st class ticket ought to get you more than some extra space and a glass of champagne. So we make sure that when our service is called 1st class, it is 1st class.

You'll see what that means from the first moment you step on board. The special attention and faultless service of our crew will almost make your flight a mini-vacation in itself.

When it's mealtime you'll hardly believe you're on an airplane. A 1st class meal on any long-distance Air France flight is practically a banquet.

Your table is set with linen, silver, crystal and Limoges. Six courses. Each one prepared and served with all the care of a fine French restaurant.

In fact, we've just inaugurated a new cuisine on all flights departing from Paris, created by the 14 great chefs of "la Grande Cuisine Française". To give your meals a variety and sophistication never before possible on an airplane. And of course you have a wide selection of choice French wines and liqueurs from the Air France cellars.

If all this makes you think we're a little fanatic about our 1st class service, you're right. Chalk it up to our French pride in savoir-vivre.

Saigon Force In Drive for Red Positions

Last Held on Capital's North Defense Line

From Wise Disnaiches SAIGON, June 10.-Government troops battled their way toward the two last Communistheld positions on Saigon's northern defense line today after fighting yesterday which left nearly 300 casualties on both sides.

Military sources said that the heaviest fighting occurred between the rubble of An Dien village, retaken by government troops last week, and "Position 82," both about 25 miles north of the capital

The sources said that government pilots reported killing be-tween 125 and 155 Communist troops yesterday in bombing raids supporting the Saigon units advance toward Position 82.

Government casualties were five dead and 63 wounded, the Saigon command reported.

An Dien village, Position 32 and another position in the area were captured by Communist forces last month, posing a threat to the capital's northern defense line. The government immediately launched a drive to recapture them but so far has been able to retake only An Dien village, after fighting which left more than 500 dead on both sides.

Fighting at Prek Luong

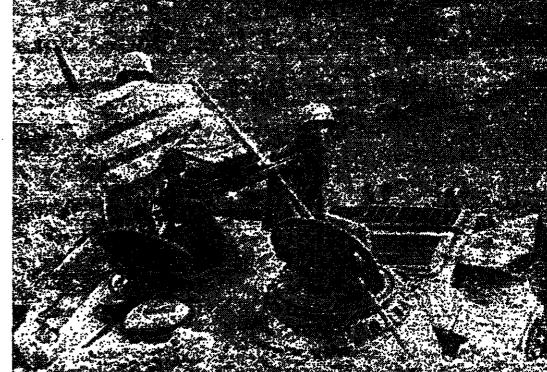

In Phnom Penh the Cambodian military command reported fighting at Prek Luong, on the east bank of the Mekong River five miles northeast of Phnom Penh. The command said that its troops killed 12 Khmer Rouge insurgents and captured a number of weapons. Five government troops were wounded it added.

Other fighting was reported in the isolated provincial capital of Kompong Seila, 85 miles southeast of the capital.

At the same time in Phnom Penh, Cambodian government leaders paid their last respects to two officials killed last week in a student-police confrontation. President Lon Nol posthumously decorated Minister of Education Kee Sankim and his deputy, Thach Chea, with National Defense Medals, calling them heroes who "sacrificed their lives for the nation."

Reliable sources said that Communist agents killed the two men, taking advantage of the SAIGON, June 10 (UPI) .-The Saigon command said today that since the cease-fire was declared on Jan. 28, 1973. at least $51,454 Vietnamese soldiers on both sides have been killed or wounded.

A spokesman said that 65,014 Communist soldiers have been killed. Although there is no official count of Communist wounded, commanders figure that three men are wounded for each man killed, which would mean 195,042 Communist wounded.

Government casualties since the armistice declarationhave been 17,722 killed and 73,676 wounded, the Salgon command reported.

IN THE AIRLINE BUSINESS, IT'S ENCOURAGING TO BE PRAISED.

"As every woman does, I like to be able to choose. That's why I appreciate he fact that TWA offers me a choice of hree main courses in Economy. They give you all the attention and service you need, both on the ground and in he air."

Mrs Fiorella Negro, Proprietor, Art-Vis, Ball-point pens, Italy.

Tappreciate TWA's outstanding ground service. TWA is unmatched in helping you resolve problems and get through some of the difficult formalities one encounters from time to time.

And everything is done so courteously."

Mr. Guy-Philippe Demory, Director General, Hearty Petrochem, France.

I particularly like the possibility of using the Ambassador Service seat that can be converted into a sidetable, especially on a long flight. I will continue to fly TWA every time I can. The service is good, and flights are usually on time."

Frederic de Sibert, Director, Europe, Sikorsky Helicopter Marketing, France.

"I frequently have to go to various cities in the U.S. And TWA is the most comfortable system I have found not only to go to these places directly, but also to enjoy on each trip the rest I need to put my affairs in order."

Mr. José Maria Maso, President, Motormaso-Evinrude, Spain.

"I spend my life coming and going from one place to another. Sometimes I even have to be in two different cities on the same day. That's why I appreciate in all its value the famous punctuality of TWA in keeping to its schedules."

> Mr. Carlos Vento Jiménez-Carles, Director General, Servicar, S.A., Spain.

"I always enjoy my flight with TWA. But what I like best are the comfortable seats. And it's not only me, my family enjoys them, too. They make our flight so comfortable. I must also say that formalities after landing are completed in the minimum time."

Mr. James G. Phillips,
Regional Director,
American Life Insurance Company,
Greece.

"Some years I make as many as 18 round trips to the United States and I have found pretty consistently that TWA has the best balance of attention on the ground and service in the air.

They make it easier to get what I want on the ground, and they're very good in the air."

Mr. J. P. Wilkerson, Director, Marsteller Ltd., U.K.

"TWA's people give me the feeling that they're real people who have homes, and families, and a sense of humour. They look after one in a very personal way which I greatly appreciate."

Mr. Nicholas G. Bark, F.B.C.S., Managing Director, Control Data Limited, U.K.

"During my frequent trips to the Far East I always take TWA. The in-flight personnel combine professionalism with warmth in a way I highly appreciate."

> Mr. Ludovico Sala, Chairman of Omino di Ferro & Martaz S.p.A., Italy.

"I should like to compare TWA's
Ambassador Service with a well-run
Swiss hotel: Everything runs smoothlyfrom making your reservation to saying good-bye. The planes are run with strict tidyness throughout. The guest is king, and the staff haven't forgotten
the art of smiling."

Mr. George Rocco, Proprietor, Silvretta Hotel, Switzerland.

At TWA, we feel that experienced business travellers are the ultimate judges of airline service.

They travel a lot. And if you don't please them, you lose them.

We're glad to say that a lot of them are pretty pleased about TWA.

As businessmen, they understand the simple logic behind TWA's Ambassador Service: give people better value for their money than anybody else, and you end up with many more satisfied passengers.

They may come out with words of praise. Or they may quietly book with TWA again for the next trip.

Either way, it's a good reason for you to see your travel agent about flying TWA next time.

Many of our most loyal passengers originally thought they'd just try us once, for a change.

'Pinafore' Shipwrecked In Germany

By James Helme Sutcliffe KASSEL, West Germany (IHT).

Gilbert & Sullivan's "HMS Pinafore" has sailed into the Kassel Staatstheater repertory

However, this German premiere was shipwrecked from the start with the production team and artists issuing warnings, ostensibly occasioned by the "weak-ness" of the work itself. Kassel's reason for tackling "Pinafore" was intendant Peter Löffler's predilection for G&S in the original and his hope of establishing the Savoy Operas in German theaters as an alternative to the gooey sentimentality of homegrown operetta. In Charles Lewinsky, Löffler had a young Swiss lyricist with a bright background in cabaret and a way with words particularly attuned to Gilbert's whimsy. His ciever version of "Matrosenliebe" ("Sailor's Love," as "Pinafore" was rechristened) lacked the complete conviction of last year's "Yeomen of the Guard." Still it was a marvelous achievement, internal and end rhymes and all. There is nothing the matter with Werner Schachteli's designs either-delightful, authentically historical costumes in a composite setting which, in picturebook colors, seemed like a crosssection of British institutions. The orchestra loge, stage right. had been transformed into Sir Joseph's barge which his female relatives rowed with aplomb past a lighthouse to the center-stage paddlewheeler Pinafore, docked close to the Portsmouth bawdy house, vicarage and pub, the Hercules Inn (named after Kassel's baroque architectural wonder), all on stage left.

But once the action started, shock set in. The sailors wash themselves, not the deck, down. Little Buttercup's succulent drops turn out to be Portsmouth whores whose backsides the crew stroke and pat during Ralph's "Night-ingale" ballad.

Things get worse Sir Joseph's hang performances of musical barge sinks (to the taped sound works otherwise rarely heard, and of a car crash), forcing his sundry so it has been at the opening of relatives to swim to the ship and the 27th Aldeburgh Festival. strip-to Victorian undies-to be dried off by the crew and made comfortable in deck chairs (which Holst's birth brought us. The Long-Lived April in Paris Ball

By Hebe Dorsey PARIS, June 10 (IHT).—Charity balls come and go. But the April in Paris ball has survived 23 years, something of a record, and a money-making one.

Since it was founded in 1951 by Elsa Maxwell (of diminutive size but giant social stature) and Claude Philippe (then director of the Waldorf Astoria Hotel in New York), the ball has raised $3 1/2 million for Franco-American charities. The idea grew from a costume ball the two gave in New York in 1950 to celebrate Paris's 2,000th anniversary. With Miss Maxwell spinning around as Marie de Medici, the ball was such a success that the annual April in Paris ball, always held in the Waldorf Astoria's Grand Ballroom, took shape.

Besides raising money for French and American charities, the ball's assets are many. Tax-Deductible

The main, if crass, one is that gifts to charity in the United States are tax-deductible. Another come-on is gigantic hisand-hers gift boxes which make guests feel that, here and there, they get their money back. Finally, the ball continues because there are enough women in Paris and New York with enough time on their hands to give to a cause. The interest has never died down because the April in Paris ball became ideal social entrée.

The April in Paris ball, which is now held in October, has had its ups and downs. The ups included the days when the affair was co-sponsored by both Mrs. Charles de Gaulle and Mrs. Dwight Eisenhower when their

Then the ball, having generated myriads of other, smaller charity balls, went through a down phase. There were days when people still bought tickets but did not bother to attend. But things are picking up again for the April in Paris ball. The French committee, now headed by Princess Edouard de Lobkowicz, has regained social luster. Yesterday, Lady Deterding (of Dutch oil fortune) gave a luncheon in her Louis XV apartment for the French committee, which includes Princess de Polignac, Viscountess de Ribes, Princess d'Arenberg, Andrée de Vilmorin, Maurice Carrère, Simone Karoff and the Marquis d'Barcourt. The younger generation was represented by Maryll Lanvin and Joy de Rohan-Chabot. We had been forewarned by Paul Bocuse about the main course. At a gathering in Manhattan we had the friendly audacity to ask what he would serve as the main course for such an auspicious occasion. He told us prime ribs of beef American style. "You," we assured him, "have got to be kidding." He wasn't.

Italy Gets Iranian Contract

Iran and the major Italian state holding company have announced an agreement valued et 2,000 billion lire ($3.1 billion) to build a major steel complex at Bandar Abbas, on the Persian Gulf. The work is to be carried out as a joint project between National Iranian Steel Co. and Istituto per la Ricostruzione Industriale (IRI). the state holding company, and its various subsidiaries. The project includes development of iron ore mines near Gandar Abbas, construction of a three-million-ton-a-year fron and steel plant, a 500-megawatt electrical-generating plant, a desalination plant to serve the complex and a planned satellite city of 80,000 persons.

U.S. Airlines Show a Profit

The U.S. scheduled airline industry posted net profits of nearly $223 million in 1973 despite fuel shortage problems and the resultant juggling of flight schedules. Figures released by the Air Transport Association show that the number of passengers carried on scheduled flights rose to 202 million last year from 191 million in 1972. Passenger revenues rose by 10.8 percent-from $9.3 billion in 1972 to $10.3 billion in 1973 while revenues from freight operations increased from $906 million to just over $1 billion. Operating expenses also were up sharply, from $10.6 billion in 1972 to $11.8 billion last year, leaving net operating income of $584 million and net profits of $222.8 million. The profit

"On the contrary, the level of activity seems to be well maintained and it would be a mistake to give a major stimulus to total demand by policy measures," he

Thus, the adjustment of our expenditure patterns to the new level of oil prices seems to be proceeding without undue difficulty, now that the initial shock is wearing off." Inflation, he said, has accelerated to a point at which a government keeping the rate below 10 percent annually "would consider that it was doing rather well." But, he added, the recent weakening of commodity prices made it "reasonable to hope that during the rest of this year we shall get some help from that quarter in reducing the rate of price increases."

Floating exchange rates, Mr. Zijlstra said, have been a factor boosting inflation. This was partly because of increased import costs for countries with currencies floating downward. More broadly, however, floating rates have aggravated the general inflationary psychology by further weakening confidence in money, he explained.

Free floating, the BIS president also warned, was not a cure-all for the huge balance of payments deficits accumulating by the oil-importing countries.

What is needed, he said, is "some measure of international understanding about the ex-change rate structure." Besides financing countries payment balance deficits through private markets, official assistance would be required through the international agencies and directly from government to government.

countries should make "every effort" to eliminate non - oil sources for their balance of payments troubles, the BIS presi-

General monetary reform on the basis of stable but adjustable ex-hange rates is "obviously not practical for some time to come," Mr. Zijlstra said, "However, if we could achieve and maintain some compatibility of countries' exchange rate policies, we would not only lessen the danger of adverse effects on world trade ... (but) we would also make a start on what will probably be a long road back to a true international monetary system."

The BIS annual report released today noted the need for a strong U.S. currency as basis of a restored stable monetary order. Signed by BIS general manager René Larre, the report said that when the effort for monetary reform was postponed last January the general view was that floating exchange rates "would be required for the indefinite future.

"Even before its formal postponement, the reform discussions had taken on an air of unreality and seemed stalled on disagree ment about the basic elements of the system and how it ought to function," the report said, and concluded:

"The key to restoring a stable rate system was always a dollar that commanded confidence by its convertibility and the stable monetary conditions which hay behind it.

"This objective needed constructive action on the gold problem and acceptance of some degree of balance-of-payments discipline. But with the international payments situation in its present state of flux, a par value system is probably not

Panic Caused IOS Debacle, Cornfeld Says

Jan. 1.

NEW YORK, June 10 (AP-DJ).—The collapse of the $25-billion Investors Overseas Services empire was triggered by "the panic and hysteria" of its directors who were watching their paper fortunes deteriorate as IOS stock began to fall at the start

This is the view of Bernard Cornfeld, former Brooklyn social worker who founded IOS and was its president and chief salesman as expressed to Barron's financial weekly in the second of an exclusive three-part interview.

Mr. Cornfeld said that as the stock fell, "a tremendous panic set in. Total hysteria. And the board said, look, we've got to find someone to come in and save Also, Mr. Cornfeld told Barron's, "a tremendous amount of misinformation" contributed to the collapse of IOS.

Could Have Survived Mr. Cornfeld, fresh from an 11-month stay in a Swiss jail and about to begin a campaign designed to restore the remaining IOS assets to their rightful owners, also told Barron's that the collapse need not have happened and that IOS "absolutely" could have survived the crunch. "My explanation of what happened has to begin with an over-view of the IOS phenomenon," Mr. Cornfeld said. "TOS grew out of concepts which came from my socialist youth. "I thought it would be important if everyone who was involved in the growth and the building of the company also was involved in its ownership. "This was the basis for the IOS stock option plan, and over the years some 4,000 or 5,000 people who were keys to the overall development of the company were allowed to buy stock in the company."

"As a result," Mr. Cornfeld continued, "the overwhelming majority of the board of directors consisted of large shareholders who were actively associated with the company.

"They were on the board by virtue of the fact that they had been in the company from the very beginning. They were successful primarily in the field of sales. They weren't terribly sophisticated about corporate finance or corporate management. They just happened to be keys in the area that was most important to the company, which was sales. "In any case, after the 1969 underwriting (an IOS management offering of roughly $100 million), here we were with a board consisting of many new millionaires.

"And each time the price of the stock went up $1 a share, their assets were worth $1 million more. When the price of the stock got to about $29, those that had over one million shares—and quite a few of the directors did—conwealthy. But then the stock started to full, and one day they were worth $25 million, the next day $22 million, the next day $18 million.

"After a week of this, a tremendous panic set in. Total hysteria. And the board said, look, we've got to find someone to come in and save us.

"There was a certain unanimity about this. A lot of these people, and I talk to them now, describe the situation as a kind of sanity. Old loyalties were just pretty much cast aside," Cornfeld said.

"Wasn't the stock sinking because carnings weren't up to snuff?" Barron's asked. "No," Mr. Cornfeld replied.

They ultimately turned out to be $10.3 million, but no one knew it at that point."

Meanwhile, he said, "word got out that earnings weren't going to be as high as had been anticipated. And word got out that there were all sorts of other problems in the company. And the price of the stock started going down. But in reality, there weren't any huge corporate problems at all. Sales higher than ever."

Was there a cash shortage? Barron's asked.

"I don't think so," Mr. Cornfeld said. "But everything happened very quickly, and everybody on the board, with the notable exception of two or three people and myself, was seized by the notion that it was vital to bring in somebody from the outside to save the company," Mr. Cornfeld said.

The net dividend has been fixed at Fr. 14 per share. It will be payable July 8, against remittance of coupon No. 30. Taking into account the liscal credit, the global revenue per share represents Fr. 21, compared with Fr. 20.25 last year.

The Extraordinary General Meeting, held the same day, approved all resolutions which were submitted, especially the merger agreement with the BANQUE DE L'INDOCHINE. The capital of COMPAGNIE FINAN-CIERE DE SUEZ was increased by Fr. 366,544,800 by issuing 3,665,448 shares of Fr. 100 each (face value) which will be distributed to shareholders of BANQUE DE L'INDOCHINE on the basis of 9 new SUEZ shares for 11 BANQUE DE L'INDOCHINE shares. The capital of COMPAGNIE FINANCIERE DE SUEZ is raised from Fr. 663,006,600 to Fr. 990,853,000.

Are we running out of silver?

Today, an unasual supply-demand situation in silver offers you an opportunity to gain substantial

For the past 23 years, world silver consumption has exceeded mine production. For each of the past 13 years, the gap has exceeded 100 million ounces.

Lately, the gap has been widening still further. In 1971, consumption exceeded mine production by 133 million ounces. In 1972, by 184 million ounces. And in 1973, consumption surpassed production by more than 234 million ounces.

As a result, the world is rapidly running out of available above ground supplies.

Major bull market in silver

When demand for an item consistently exceeds production, we can expect its price to rise. And that's exactly what began to happen to silver, late in 1971. By mid-1972, it was apparent that a major bull market in silver was under way.

By the end of 1972, silver had risen from $1.45 per ounce to $2.02. Yet, despite the sharply higher prices, silver consumption actually grew (up 12.9% from 1971). In 1973, the same pattern emerged: sharply higher silver prices (up to $3,26), along with increased consumption (up 12% over 1972). So far this year, the price of silver has broken all previous records.

Is there still time to "cash-in"?

With silver already at record prices, you may wonder: Is there still a chance for profits in silver?

We believe so. Of course, no investment is without risk, but we believe the bull market in silver-and your opportunity for profits-is still in the early stage. We'd like to explain why, and suggest a few silver investments we believe will be particularly profitable in the years ahead.

So may we mail you a FREE copy of the new, expanded, Second Edition of The Case for Silver? This free informational booklet, by Louis E. Carabini, President of the Pacific Coast Coin Exchange, shows you:

- When to expect the recurring shortfalls in mine production to create an acute shortage of sliver;
- · The unique properties of silver and why it's an essential, unsubstitutable commodity in most applications;
- · Why consumption and production of silver are both largely un-
- Projections for the price of silver, including timing estimates;
- Why silver is valued as a hedge against inflation and devaluation; Case histories of 4 bad inflations (including the nightmare runaway inflation in post World War I Germany), and how silver fared dur-
- Four ways to invest in silver: the drawbacks and advantages of each. Which seems to offer the best opportunity to gain both the profits you want and the protection from inflation you need. For a free copy of The Case for Silver simply send the coupon below to Monex International, Gmbh., Holzhausenstrasse 25, 6 Frankfurt am Main, West Germany, or phone 0611-596030.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN --- LENNY BRUCE! By Albert Goldman from the journalism of Lawrence Schille Illustrated. 565 pp. Random House. $10.

Reviewed by Christopher Lehmann-Haupt

JUST who exactly was Lenny Bruce—or the Lenny Bruce who emerges from this detailed biography written by Albert Goldman with the aid of research done by Lawrence Schiller? He was a nightclub comedian who once borrowed a lighted cigarette from the black basketball star Wilt Chamberlain, stared at it in mock astonishment and then confided to his audience an appalling racial slur. (The audience registered shock, Mr. Chamberlain doubled over with laughter, the audience felt free to follow suit.) But he was also a stand-up comic who could blow fresh air through his audience with his coruscating exposure of hypocrisies of 1950-ish America. He was a narcotics addict who was "busted" repeatedly on suspicion of possession, who beat one rap by "finking" on his connections and who was found dead in 1966 at the age of 40 with a "spike" in his arm and a bathrobe sash tied around his elbow. But he was never sent to jail, he never admitted his addiction, he struck the pose of the persecuted, and at least one of his many devoted friends believed at the end that. figuratively speaking, it was the police who had killed him. He was a sniveler and a charmer, a cult hero and a loser, a genius and a jerk.

A self-contradictory figure, to say the very least. A man you could pose in any number of different lights. The quintessence of hipsterism, the white Negro supreme, who aspired to raise street culture to the level of high art. The underground man incarnate, out of sight in the Eisenhower years, who came up-stairs to haunt us when the lid came loose from the fifties. The ultimate schlemiel, "who is recognized in the Jewish world as a necessary companion to the rav and the wiseman," as Mr. Goldman puts it. All these roles you could lay on Lenny Bruce, and work up heavy theses.

But what is impressive about "Ladies and Gentlemen—Lenny Bruce!" is that Mr. Goldman has refused to mount a hobby-horse. Instead he has given us Lenny Bruce in all his many guises — Showman, jazzman, hipster and whore; liar, fink and junkie; genius, rebel, artist and hero. Instead, he begins by offering us "A Day in the Life" of Mr. Bruce at the peak of his career, and the chapter is by turns so shocking funny and frightening that we forget that it is a reconstruction, and we forgive him for new-journalizing. Then he runs through Mr. Bruce's brief life and the details are so compelling that they carry us through the few dead spots where Mr. Goldman falls back on "and-then-this-happened" style, of narrative, and we forgive him his occasional preoc-

And as he moves along, he 1 warership Down, by reticulates offhand all the necesary theories: about the sources 2 laws, by Peter Benchler. 3 The Fra Club, by Irving articulates of hand all the necessary theories: about the sources and background of the Bruce performing style (the book includes an absorbing tour through the seedy world of the stand-up comedian in training); about the stages of Mr. Bruce's development as a performer (he began by imitating an obscure genius named Joe Ancis, who was too. sensitive to take the backtalk-of live audiences, and he became at his best a "shaman" bent on purging the evil spirits of America); and about the various public images that Mr. Bruce projec ed during and after his lifetim (the courageous hipster, the martyr of free speech, etc.).

But what is most extraordinal about Mr. Goldman's blograph is the sense he conveys of simu taneous involvement in M Bruce's life and objectivity abou its meaning. Mr. Goldman he long been fascinated with the world and personality of Lenr Bruce (and that fascination h now drawn him far from h profession as a professor of E glish and far from the scholar subjects of his early books). Frents his obsession by adoptive a highly informal, novelistic sty -a style that often reads as it had been written by a Yiddis Tom Wolfe-and chameleonlik this style seems to place M Goldman on the most intima: terms with his subject.

Yet he never completely loss himself in Lenny Bruce's work If the point of view suggested t his swinging unbuttoned pro: sometimes seems to merge Mr. Bruce's, the points of h anecdotes always return us critical judgment. One examp may serve to illustrate. Mr. Goldman seems to smile with approv on the close friendship that Le ny Bruce developed laic in h life with Phil Specter, the mi lionaire rock-music entrepteneu He seems pleased with M Specier for being the one exce-tion of all the pop-culture sta-of the sixties who failed to a preciate what Lenny Bruce ha-meant to the fifties. He ev-uses the character of Mr. Spect to register the loudest wail grief at the news of Mr. Bruce death. Yet one of the last anecdot of the book tells how a police lieutenant showed up at t? Specter office the day after M Bruce's death and offered to se glossy photographs of Mr. Bruce naked corpse for $5,000, on ti theory that "they could malone heliuva album cover! Yo fully expect Phil Specter scream with rage when his assi tant forwards the propositioover the phone. But Mr. Spe ter's "snarling voice on the oth end of the wire barked—Bi

The anecdote stands as a jud ment not only of Mr. Spect and the rock culture, but of sho business and the life Lem Bruce lived in it, as well.

Even among the WCT players, the right to qualify is "not on an equal and fair basis." Sure, the two top point-winners for performance in eight tournaments: in each of the three WCT groups -Blue, Red and Green-and the next two point-winners from all three groups qualify for the eightman World Championship of Tennis at Dallas. The Braves made the most of their hits in the first game with Raiph Garr getting three of the four with a triple and two singles. Garr singled home winning pitcher Phil Niekro. 7-4, with the Crawford to second. Then Joshua, first run of the game and the Braves' other two scores came in the fifth inning when Dave Johnsen and Mike Lum led off with walks and were driven in by a fielders' choice by Craig Robin-

Impeaching Congress

Cheesedip, how do you feel about the Watergate affair?" "I am shocked, appalled and horrified that such a thing could happen in this great land of Ours."

"What is Congress doing to prevent future Watergates from taking place?"

"We are studying the matter very closly."
"Do you believe there is any pos-sibility that the House will pass serious election-reform legislation "I didn't understand the ques-

Buchwald

"Congressman Cheesedip, what I meant was that, although most members of the House are very critical of every aspect of Watergate, they seem to be dragging their feet when it comes to making elections in this country less corrupt.

"I will not accept that. We have been thinking about elec-tion reform for some time now. We have been talking about it for over a year. How can you say we're dragging our feet?"
"Mainly because you haven't done anything." "Well. I would like to say this. Reforming election campaigns is r very serious matter. We have to look at it from all sides. It's

Red Tape Delays Panov Departure

MOSCOW, June 10 (UPI)— Ballet star Valery Panov said today that he and his ballerina wife, Galina, have had to delay their departure for Israel until Friday because of bureaucratic anags in obtaining exit visas.

Mr. Panov. 35, fired from the Kirov Ballet in Leningrad when he applied to emigrate in 1972, went to the visa office in Leningrad today to collect the visas he was promised Saturday.

But he said in a telephone interview later that officials told him that more paperwork was needed and he would get the visas Wednesday, The couple originally were ordered to leave the country no later than Thursday.

WASHINGTON.—"Congressman true that there have been abuses. particularly in the area of financing political candidates, and we're very concerned about this. At the same time it would be a mistake if we abolished these abuses and made it more dif-flcult for men of high principle

> "Then, Congressman Cheesedip, could I say that you are against election reforms this

"I am not against election retorms. I take the position—and I have said this publicly many imes that we need to have reforms in our political process. But I believe it would be a very dangerous thing to pass any laws that would make it more difficult for well-meaning people to con-Their voices should be heard, and, if they want to do it by financing a particular candidate, then I say God bless them. That's the American way of doing things."

"But isn't that the very thing that got the Committee to Re-Elect the President in all its trouble?"

"I don't think we should be tarred by what the Committee to Re-Elect the President did. I am proud to say that, although I have received contributions from the milk producers, the oil companies and the construction in-dustries. I have never permitted this to interfere in how I would vote on any particular bill. Every congressman on this hill feels the same way. If we didn't, we would, of course, ask for stronger

Lonely and Full of Hate, She Joined the Nazi Party

By Lacey Fosburgh

SAN PRANCISCO (NYT).—There are certain things Sandra Silva likes and certain things she hates. She likes, for instance, "discipline and a well-ordered life," warfare, the military and Hitler.

And she hates, to list a few, blacks, Jews, minorities, Communists, "troublemakers" (anyone who threatens white supremacy, and the prospect of "wasting time."

Sandra Silva is a member of the local chapter of the American Nazi party. And, as a 20-year-old clerk in the Police Department, she has become the unlikely focus of a citywide controversy about the rights of those who belong to unpopular organizations-like the Nazis-to rally, speak at public meetings, wear uniforms and even hold city jobs.

The stern-faced woman has become a key element in a dispute over freedom of choice and ideas that has pitted the Nazis, the American Civil Liberties Union and the Roman Catholic archdiocese, among others, against prominent members of the Board of Supervisors, the Board of Education, the Jew-ish War Veterans, leaders of the black community, and significantly, many traditional local liberals.

There are many points of conflict, but two of the main issues are whether Miss Silva should be forced to change jobs because her Nazi affiliation might damage what the Police Department describes as its "sensitive image" and whether Nazis should be barred from wearing their brown uniforms in public. After months of heated controversy, it appears that Miss Silva, protected by civil service rules, the ACLU and the Nazis, will be able to keep her $514-a-month job and that the uniform ban will not be passed.

The situation began last December when members of the Nazi party, in existence here for seven years, but rarely in public, began to attend school board meetings and speak out against integration and busing.

The resulting publicity, said Mat Koehl, the 39-year-old president of the National Socialist White People's party (the official name of the Nazi party), has made San Francisco the most prominent chapter in the country. There are about 39 others, he said.

Although "official policy" forbids disclosure of the number of members anywhere, approximately 25 to 30 brown shirts invariably attend Nazi railies here. And the one who was first publicly identified was Sandra Silva of the Police Department.

After more than a month of refusing to be interviewed. the young woman finally agreed to talk in a public restaurant, under the condition that she be accompanied by Allen Vincent, the local chapter president, and Mr. Koehl. He was in town for a rally in honor of Rudolf Hess, the Nazi war criminal.

The three arrived, with a tape recorder, and Miss Silva explained how she became a Nazi and why a complete dedication to the party has usurped, for her, any other kind of life. Miss Silva, for example, has never had a date, never had a drink, doesn't want to get married and did not, according to an official at the Police Department, utter one word during her first eight months at work

Miss Silva said she did not become a Nazi or a white supremacist, that in fact she had always been one. As a child, she said, "I didn't understand why, but I always felt this dislike for blacks. They disgusted me . . . they were always causing trouble."

Asked if any specific childhood experience or series of events aroused this hatred in her, she said no, but that she had attended a largely black elementary school where her dislike grew and grew.

Her attitude, were nurtured, she conceded, by the atmosphere at home where her father, then a policeman, now a probation officer, and her mother, both believed in white In 1964, when Miss Silva was 10, her parents left San Francisco to escape the black population and moved into a middle class white suburb south of here where she was confronted for the first time with "Jews, liberals and commies." It's here that she began to decide, she said, that such groups were responsible for all problems in the world-including, she said, inflation, rising population and the vanishing wilderness. Her belief in white supremacy steadily grew as she became more and more disturbed by the "garbage" that was 'destroying?' American society.

At school she first became fascinated with Nazi Germany and the military and grew to worship Hitler because, she said, he understood the true problems facing society.

It was with "a great sense of relief," however, that in 1971, at 17, she discovered that a neo-Nazi party existed. She joined immediately.

Asked how she could reconcile her beliefs with the Nazi atrocities committed during World War II, she said it was very easy. Echoing comments made by both Mr. Vincent and Mr. Koehl, she said: "I read all about the myth of the six million and it's a known fact six million Jews could not have been killed by the Nazis. That wasn't their philosophy. People seem to believe their philosophy was genocide, but it wasn't." Mr. Koehl, who scoffed at all suggestion of possible Nazi atrocities against the Jews, observed that the majority of the party members were now in their mid-20s and had little or no personal recollection of World War II. In 1972, after she had graduated from high school and went to work for the Police Department ("because there you get a better class of people . . . no blacks or Jews"), her involvement with the party intensified.

"I stay home all the time and I don't go out at all," she said. Five hights a week, for example, she does "party work" like addressing envelopes and mailing literature in her bedroom in the white house where she lives with her parents, Saturdays she attends party meetings and Sundays she's at home.

All the time Miss Silva talked, Mr. Koehl, who never smiled, and Mr. Vincent listened intently. The tape recorder turned and nobody touched the plate of roast beef sandwiches. Mr. Koehl, who said he makes "less than $25 a week" and took over the presidency when former president George Lincoln Rockwell was slain in 1967, was excessively nervous, scratching his head and twitching his mustache. He perked up only occasionally at Miss Silva's remarks.

He seemed to particularly like it when, asked what she did for "fun," Miss Silva said: "Anything to do with the Nazi party is fun."

She was also celebrating the publication of "Book-er T's Child," a book about her memories written by Roy Hill, an assistant professor of English at Rutgers. "My parents were very happy together," she said, "but it lasted only such a brief time. My mother was just a girl when she died—so young, 26 years old... They said my father allost his mind when she died ... " She was born at Tuskegee Institute in Alabama, about two years after her father founded it. Her interests were in music she studied at Wellesley College and in Berlin under Martin Krause, who had been a pupil of Franz Liszt. She later taught music at Tuskegee.
